

HERB LIST

Herbs grow well in pots and in the garden. Harvest herbs often to keep the plants compact and bushy.

Basil (annual)	Basil is very sensitive to cold weather in the Spring. Protect at temps 50 degrees and lower.
Lime:	Strong, tangy, lime, flavor and fragrance.
Sweet:	Common. Traditional Basil. Clove like flavor.
Thai Siam Queen:	Slightly stronger, sweeter licorice flavor
Bay (Laurel)(annual)	The Sweet Bay or Laurel is very sensitive to cold weather in the Spring. Protect at temps 50 degrees and lower.
Borage (annual)	Attracts bees, plant near fruiting plants to increase pollination and production. Cucumber-flavored young leaves.
Catnip (perennial)	Intoxicating for cats!
Chives (perennial)	The flowers are edible too, add to salads for color and flavor.
Common:	Delicate onion flavor.
Garlic:	Delicate garlic flavor.
Cilantro (annual)	International Herb of the Year. The parsley-like leaves are Cilantro and the sweet aromatic seeds are Coriander . Short lived plants, harvest often.
Fernleaf Dill (annual)	A dwarf variety, good for containers. Slow to seed.
Geranium (annual)	Citrus-scented foliage that is known to repel insects. Can also be used for potpourri, herb pillows, and tea.
Citronella:
Hops (perennial)	Makes an ornamental screen and has great disease resistance.
Cascade:	Cascade is an aroma type hops for Pale Ales, IPAs and Porters.
Lemon Grass (annual)	The strongly lemon-scented grassy leaves are used for tea, perfumes, soap, and flavoring oil.
Mint (perennial)	Vigorous spread, we recommend planting in containers. All mints will tolerate partial shade.
Margarita:	Big, bold lime taste that is the perfect compliment to your next Margarita.
Mojito:	Bright green leaves with the best flavor for mojitos.
Spearmint:	This is the one used in mint juleps.
Oregano (perennial)	Very aromatic!
Greek Strain:	Aromatic, spreading foliage. Compliments all tomato dishes. Edible, white to purple flowers.
Kent Beauty:	Used as a trailing, accent plant. Great for containers. Hops-like, hanging, lavender florets.
Parsley (biennial)
Curly:	Best known for use as a garnish. It looks great in pots mixed with annuals.
Italian:	Flat leaf variety. Preferred for culinary.
Rosemary (annual)	Very aromatic. Foliage has multiple uses for fragrance, food, health, and beauty. The blue flowers are edible.
Sage
Pineapple:(annual)	Brilliant, fiery red, edible flowers in September attract hummingbirds and bees.
Purple: (perennial)	Use in stuffing, sausage, omelets, and tea. Purple-tinged foliage adds interest.
Tricolor: (perennial)	The pink, white and green foliage adds interest to the herb or container garden. Goes well with pork and duck.
Tarragon (perennial)	True French tarragon. Tarragon is the basis for salad dressings.
Thyme (perennial)
English:	Aromatic, gray-green foliage. Low growing and spreading.
Variegated Lemon:	Gold-green foliage has a lemon flavor and scent. The pale lilac flowers are edible.
Verbena (annual)
Lemon:	The foliage retains its lemon fragrance well and is used in tea, salads and potpourri.
